City, township offices closed for New Year

In observance of the New Year, City of Romulus and Huron Township offices will be closed on Friday, Dec. 30 and on Monday, Jan. 2, 1984.

City and township officials will be back on the job, Tuesday, Jan. 3 to conduct business.

For further information please telephone 941-0666. (Romulus City Hall) or 753-4466 (Huron Township Hall).

The regularly scheduled Romulus City Council meeting for Monday, Jan. 2 has been rescheduled for Tues., Jan. 3 at 8 p.m.

Huron seeking teachers

Huron School District officials today announced that they are in dire need of substitute teachers.

If you have a minimum of 120 semester hours of satisfactory college credit on an approved teacher education program with six semester hours of those 120 in professional education credit or are currently enrolled in a completing course work on an approved teacher preparation program, the school district would like to hear from you.

Substitute teachers will be compensated the sum of $40 per day.

For further information, contact Gary J. Jackson, superintendent of Huron School District (782-2441) or write to the Huron School District, 32044 Huron River Drive, New Boston, Michigan 48164.

Seniors plan trip to Florida

The Romulus Senior Citizens Center is accepting reservations for a trip to Florida scheduled for Jan. 26 through Feb. 6. The cost of the trip is $429 and includes seven days and seven nights at the Pines Resort at Indian Harbour Beach, Florida.

There are many features planned for the travelers.

Those wishing further information, should telephone the Romulus Senior Citizens Center, 941-0666, extension 257.

And I've been real good

A speechless child sits upon Santa's knees and gets in her last minute Christmas list before Santa returned to the North Pole for another year. Goodfellows report that many children were able to celebrate Christmas with a smile, however, requests for Christmas baskets this year set a record.

Local requests for food baskets soar

Requests for food baskets from area needy reached record levels this Christmas season, say organizers of local Goodfellow drives.

"I've been doing this for 15 years, and the need this year was greater than I've ever seen," said George Hunter, a coordinator of the Belleville/Van Buren food drive. "The calls just kept coming in."

"You hear things are supposed to be getting better, but we had a lot more requests this year than the past couple of years," agreed Michael Huziak, president of the Sumpter Goodfellows.

Three weeks before Christmas, bundled-up Goodfellow volunteers manned street corners seeking contributions in exchange for their "good will" newspaper. Donations went to purchase food (and sometimes clothing) items which the energetic members of the "Old Newsboy" organization delivered to area needy.

And while they encountered a few examples of "greed, not need," the Goodfellow leaders say that most people seeking their help were simply trying to stave off what would have been a bleak Christmas for themselves and their families.

"There still are a lot of people not working out there," Hunter said. "We've had some of the same names on our list the past two or three years."

Many names came from school lists of children eligible for free federal lunch programs. "These were just families needing some help for their Christmas," Hunter said.

The two Goodfellow organizers said they collected between 175 and 200 baskets of food to area families. Huziak noted that senior citizens accounted for about 50 of the nearly 200 basket recipients.

While Huziak said that contributions were comparable to those in previous years, Hunter said donations were fewer and smaller than usual. "I don't know the final count, yet, but we made between $500 and $1000 from our news sales," he said. "People just couldn't give what they'd like."

"Those who did give were wonderful," he added. "And a couple of people told us their families had gotten help from the Goodfellows when they were little. This one man who gave me $10 said that if it wasn't for the Goodfellows, there wouldn't have been Christmas in his home when he was growing up."

The Goodfellow activists said they encountered only a few cases of people "trying to get something for nothing."

"There was this one lady, and I knew she already got a basket from church," Hunter said. "I told her, 'This is for the needy, not the greedy.' But nine out of 10 people who called really needed any help we could give them."

"It makes you mad when you hear that man who works for Reagan (presidential aid Edwin Meese) say there's no hunger in this country," Hunter added.

Belleville Chamber of Commerce Director Leona Van-Buhler, whose office served as one of the food drop-off points, said that one a few mornings "it was just one call after another."

"People called here because they didn't know where to turn. You heard some really sad stories," she recalled.

The food drive officially ended the Friday before Christmas.

Goodfellow leaders emphasized their appreciation for the efforts of community residents. "Business around here helped us a lot," said Jerry Maton, chairman of Belleville/Van Buren Goodfellows. "Foodville (a Belleville grocery store) came through to fill in the gaps."

Robbery, accident mar Christmas holidays

An armed robbery and a fatal accident marred the holidays in Romulus, police said.

A lone gunman walked into the Total Gas Station at 7084 Wayne Road Friday night and produced a revolver. He told the gas station attendant to "get into the back room."

"You know what I want," the gunman added, then proceeded to the cash register where he rifled its contents. The robber made off with more than $100 in cash.

The victim described the gunman as a black male, with a medium Afro and thin moustache. The robber was about 5 feet, 8 inches and had on a tan jacket with a hood.

Romulus Det. David Early said that the robber produced what the victim said was a blue steel 38 caliber revolver.

"The gas station attendant didn't see a get-a-way vehicle," Det. Early added. "We're still looking for suspects."

A 17-year-old Romulus youth lost his life last Wednesday when the car he was a passenger in went out of control and was struck by a second vehicle.

The victim was Edward Quarrels of Romulus.

According to Romulus police Quarrels was a passenger in a car driven by a teen-age driver who was traveling northbound on Wayne Road about 2:15 p.m. on Dec. 21 when she apparently lost control of the vehicle.

The car crossed the median and was struck by a vehicle traveling southbound on Wayne near Northline Road.

"There were three other injuries in this accident," said Det. Early. "All the victims were taken to Annapolis or Wayne County General Hospital and later conveyed to other medical facilities."

"According to witnesses the young lady apparently lost control of her car and that triggered the accident," Det. Early added.

The big chill

Record freezing temperatures leave their scars on Romulus

The arctic freeze that has left most of the United States crippled and has caused millions of dollars in damage to the citrus fruit crops in Florida and Texas has left its mark on Romulus and Huron Township, according to officials.

The freeze has claimed 238 lives across the nation. It has severed water mains and frozen water lines in the city and township. Fortunately, no one has been reported injured or killed locally due to the sub-zero weather.

"We have a serious icing problem here in the city," said Robert Plank, Director of Public Works for the City of Romulus. "And salting the roads doesn't help in these extremely cold temperatures."

Plank explained that when the temperature reaches below 20 degrees, the salt may melt the ice, however, the temperature immediately refreezes the water.

"We are asking our residents to drive carefully and hopefully we'll get warmer weather soon," Plank added.

The National Weather Service reported today that the temperatures in the Romulus area should climb into the 20s today, however, the warming trend would be accompanied by snow which could compound the problem. Snow over the ice would make driving even more hazardous than it is presently.

Plank also pointed out that there have been several broken water mains reported in the city.

"We have had a rash of broken water mains," Plank added, "and also we have had a lot of water service lines to individual homes frozen which means a lot of residents are not receiving water due to this extremely cold weather."

Plank recommended that if a resident is having problems with water freezing, open the faucets and allow the water to run. Running water will not freeze.

Mayor Beverly McAnally said that her administration will do everything possible to help and aid residents during this crisis.

"We will do everything in our power to keep the roads safe," Mayor McAnally said. "It is unfortunate that this year there has been extremely cold weather, in fact, record-breaking freezing weather throughout the area and state. But we are mobilize all our resources to help our citizens during this crisis."

Mayor McAnally pointed out that all of the neighboring communities are "faced with the same situation therefore it is difficult for them to render reciprocal assistance."

Heisler found guilty of murder

A 23-year-old Romulus man was found guilty of the rape-strangulation murder of Dixie Belle Cobb of New Boston. The Circuit Court jury brought in the verdict last week.

Convicted of the murder is Gregory Heisler who was scheduled to be sentenced yesterday by Judge Michael Stacy. Heisler will be sentenced to a mandatory life prison term.

A second man, John Frye, 28, who reportedly was Heisler's companion and is accused of aiding him in taking Mrs. Cobb's life is awaiting trial.

Mrs. Cobb, 41, a divorcee, was murdered in June. Witnesses said that the victim had been seen talking with Heisler in a local bar prior to the murder.

Mrs. Cobb refused to let Heisler accompany her home, however, Heisler followed her and managed to talk his way inside the home, knowing that she resided there alone, Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Charles Seller told the jury.

Seller said that Mrs. Cobb was sexually assaulted and then beaten with a leg from a nearby table. The victim was then dragged from her home and to the nearby Huron River where she was strangled and her body thrown into the river.

Heisler contended that he attempted to rescue Mrs. Cobb and that it was his companion who had strangled her.

Mayor McAnally's message

A new spirit

As the new year approaches it brings to each of us renewed hope, determination and promise of improvement for the coming year.

It is with the spirit of renewal and of new beginnings that we as a community greet 1984 with its many new challenges.

Our achievements individually and as a city will depend upon our cooperation and courage as we face the challenges ahead.

My wish to the people of Romulus is that they have the opportunity of choice, that we shall face together our problems, and that we shall together grow and prosper.

I wish each of us good friends, good health, happiness and security not only in 1984 but in all the years ahead.

Beverly McAnally
Mayor of Romulus

Andy and Steve Limpus Carriers of the Week

Residents of Holiday Park Mobile Homes in Canton Township have the distinction of being served by not one, but two, Carriers of the Week.

Selected by the Circulation Department at Associated Newspapers, brothers Andy and Steve Limpus serve 148 residents of their neighborhood with regular delivery of the Canton Eagle.

The brothers and their family moved to Canton in August from Indiana, and the carriers began their routes in September. They were recommended by an assistant manager at the park who considered them "reliable". Her assessment was undoubtedly correct as the selection of the boys and Carriers of the Week indicates.

Andy, 15, is a 10th grade student at John Glenn High School and Steve, 13, is in the eighth grade at Stevenson Junior High School. Andy serves 68 customers each week and it takes about an hour or so to complete his task.

"I like to talk to the people and get to know them," he explained, "I like the route and try to do a good job."

He enjoys French and geometry at school and includes swimming and bicycling among his hobbies. His career ambition is to be a doctor.

Steve enjoys painting with acrylics, and his favorite subject in school is also French. He would like to pursue a career involving computers and is hoping that the family will own one soon. He took a computer class at school in Indiana and has been a devoted computer fan ever since.

"I try to be nice and deliver the paper on time. And I don't leave a mess — I try to put the paper only where it's supposed to be and where the customer wants it left," Steve said of the 80 customers that he serves.

The Carrier of the Week is selected by the Circulation Department and nominations from subscribers are being accepted at 729-4000 during regular business hours.

More police, paved roads... and better desks?

What can Canton Township officials do to better the community?

Canton Supervisor Jim Poole invited students from Plymouth-Canton and surrounding districts to try their hand at solving some of the township's problems.

In a letter addressed to school principals, Poole asked students to list "the ten most important things we could do in our community to lead to better understanding, better communication... for the overall betterment of our township and its citizens."

Although replies are still being received by the supervisor's office, many students have already offered some practical, and surprising, suggestions.

The following were chosen from among letters received so far:

- Take more advice from the public
- Use old buildings
- More parks and play equipment

- More safeties
- Better schools
- Listen to people

- Run township office with less confusion
- Help disabled - build ramps

- Help elder people that can't afford to much. Give them food and other needs
- More parades
- Cut taxes to lowest possible price

- Don't hire people you don't need

- Do something about all the stray animals

- Do something about beaten kids

- Raise a flag for some spirit
- Fix roads. Some have holes which are rough to the car

- More community projects for all ages... it will keep people from doing a lot of rotten things.

The supervisor expressed disappointment that more schools haven't responded to his letter, and that one building principal wrote back saying that class time wasn't available for the project.

"Kids learn about history and the Revolutionary War," Poole noted, "but I thought this would be a chance for them to learn a little about real-life government and have some input."

"Some of the suggestions I've received are very worthwhile," the supervisor added, "and I'm planning to implement some of them."

Poole stated that his invitation for suggestions was prompted by the belief that children are often a neutral and truthful source of information.

"They haven't been tainted by society, haven't learned to hate and distrust or perfect the art of lying and conniving."

"I also did this," Poole said, "because I think our youth is a real resource that is absolutely untouched in our community and nation. They've got some good ideas."

Girl Scouts do tree plantings

If you would have driven by Elwell Elementary School recently, you would have seen "Space Invaders", "Q Berts" and "Centipedes" planting three trees.

These names represent patrols that make up Junior Troop 589 of the Elwell cluster of Girl Scouts.

The project was overseen by Jerry Pasek, owner of Tree-O, who donated the trees. Jerry and his assistants also instructed the troop in other gardening skills, such as pruning trees, trimming shrubs and general cleaning of the school grounds.

Troop leaders, Deanna Lucas, Sherrie Henry and Carole Pasek enjoyed the afternoon with the scouts and look forward to seeing these trees grow strong and healthy.

Romulus High to host CCP

During the week of Jan. 9, all juniors at Romulus High School will have an opportunity to participate in a career guidance and educational planning experience, the ACT Career Planning Program.

The CPP is designed to help students make better decisions about their education and career plans.

Mae Jackson at Romulus High School pointed out that national studies reflect that "11th grade students rank help with career planning as their most important need. Yet, in many school settings, this need currently is not being addressed. It is in response to this need that Romulus is providing the opportunity for students to participate in the Career Planning Program."

Participating students complete the Career Planning Program instrument which measures the student's career related interests, experiences, abilities and plans.

The data collected is developed into a report for each student to help them relate this information about themselves to career options and the world of work.

The reports will be reviewed with students in group and individual counseling sessions. Miss Jackson added that "the Career Planning Program is not just an assessment experience, but part of a career planning process, forming a foundation for the start of each student's career journey."

About 75 percent of last year's juniors at Romulus said they were planning further education after high school. Forty-seven percent were planning toward a technical/vocational program and 31 percent were aiming for four years or more of college attendance.

The aim of the school's guidance program is to assist all these students, regardless of their objectives, with the process of learning about and exploring career opportunities, said the counselors at Romulus.

"We feel that the Career Planning Program will help us accomplish that aim," Jackson concluded.

Fireplace problems 'burn' homeowner

By ROSE MARY REIZ
ANP Staff Writer

Christmas won't find Canton Township residents Susan and Dimitro Kordupel huddled in front of a cozy fire this year.

In May 1980, a month after the Kordupels moved into their new home on Suten Drive, smoke billowing out of the fireplace set off smoke detectors in the home.

Susan Kordupel contacted township building inspectors and Aldor Construction, the builders of the home, several times between then and January 1981, when a fireplace fire ignited in her home.

An inspection done after the fire revealed holes in the mortar of the chimney wall.

"Both the builder's and my homeowner's insurance companies refused the fire claim," Kordupel said. "Finally my husband and I bought cement and patched the holes ourselves."

According to Kordupel, the fire marshal and building inspector agree that mortar work in the chimney was constructed improperly and needed to be redone.

Alexander Paul, president of Aldor, said that an ailing economy forced his corporation out of business. "I've built over 5,000 homes in my career," Paul said, "and this type of situation is unusual. Out of the 30 or 40 homes I built in Canton, this is the only case of a problem of this type."

Paul admitted that the "particular brick mason on that home goofed up," but said that he has referred the matter to his insurance company, and doesn't know how the situation is progressing.

"It isn't," said Kordupel. "I'm getting the run-around from his insurance company, Homeowners Warranty refused to help, and the township says they can't do anything either."

"Now it's two years later, I've got water coming through the ceilings and walls causing more damage and a fireplace I can't use."

"We can't afford to spend $3,000 to fix this ourselves," Kordupel added. "I think that, somewhere along the line, someone has to take responsibility for this."

Canton's chief building official, Aaron Machnik, agreed that Kordupel has a problem, but said that his ability to help solve it ended 18 months after her move to the township.

ed," he added, "but this problem, which seems to have been caused by an improper mix of mortar, wasn't detectable until it was too late."

Machnik guessed that a weak mortar composition used on this chimney was a result of inexperience rather than malicious intent.

"Mrs. Kordupel has a justifiable complaint, and I'd be will-

"I'm getting the run-around from the builder's insurance company, Homeowners Warranty has refused help and the township says they can't do anything. I think someone has to take responsibility for this"

— Canton homeowner Susan Kordupel

"I feel the same way she does — frustrated," Machnik said. "Usually any problems with a home surface within the first year of occupancy, when our department has some control over the builder's license. Once the first 18 months pass, however, our ability to affect the license ends. It's even harder in this case, when the builder is no longer in the community or even in the business."

Machnik said that Kordupel's excessive use of the fireplace and her failure to submit written complaints in a timely manner compounded the problem. "The fireplace was checking to help her in whatever way I can," Machnik said. "Unfortunately, if the builder won't take responsibility and return on his own to correct the situation, her only recourse may be to take him to court."

Kordupel said that she is unsure what course of action she will pursue. "This has caused so many problems already, and going to court may be even more expensive than the chimney repairs," she said.

"I just think it's sad that no one will take responsibility, and that we have to bear the burden of someone else's sloppy work."

In the running

Canton senior strides to world victory

By ROSE MARY REIZ
ANP Staff Writer

Canton Township resident Melba Hatch put a turkey in the oven Thanksgiving afternoon. Then she went out and ran around her subdivision.

Running has become a daily activity and way of life for Hatch, 55, who recently brought home two silver and one bronze medal in the World Masters Track and Field Championship in Puerto Rico, an event in which 48 countries were represented.

"I try to run daily," she says, "either outside or on an indoor track. It's something I do just for myself and for the fun of it."

Hatch's beginnings in the sport four years ago were slow and painful. "I knew a few people who jogged, and kept thinking I should try it," she recalls. "The trouble was, I couldn't stand doing it. I'd go a mile, get exhausted and think, 'This just isn't fun.' I invented excuses not to run, and finally decided to quit altogether."

Her interest was rekindled three years ago when the Grand Trunk Railroad office where Hatch works relocated to Detroit.

"I kept seeing the Emily Fun Run race advertised, and decided to give running another chance," she says.

Hatch trained for the 6.2 mile event ("Not properly," she admits. "I tried to increase too much, too fast.") and entered the race alone.

"I had no idea what a good time the event would be. Winning was the last thing on my mind," remembers Hatch, who only learned she had taken first place in her category a week later when, while browsing at Emily's shop, she recognized her name in a race booklet another customer was reading.

"After that I became addicted." A series of weekend races ("probably 100 or so") followed, culminating in the world championship this year, an event Hatch describes as her biggest running achievement.

"I never enter with the idea of winning medals," she explains, "because I don't believe you should go out with that in mind. I just like to compete and see what I can do."

Improved health, traveling and meeting people are added benefits of the sport. "My doctor, who also runs, thinks it's great," Hatch says. "And runners are the nicest people. I you run that race?" "No," he laughed, "but my mother did."

"I'm a very hyper person," Hatch says. "I work sitting at a desk all day, and I've always had to find ways to keep busy. Knitting and crocheting just have new friends all over the country and world. My only regret in the world championship race was that it was hard to converse with the German, Japanese and Chinese runners."

Hatch says her family is supportive of her participation in the sport. "My husband likes to brag about me a little when people come over," she laughs, "and I've collected so many t-shirts from races that I began ordering them in large sizes for my sons. One son was spotted wearing one in a shopping center by another runner who went up to him and asked, 'Oh, did aren't for me. This is. I think it's a great sport for people my age."

The runner's advice to beginners is to check with a doctor before starting "and don't get discouraged. I used to think that my muscles would never stop hurting. But finally they did. And that's when the fun starts."

For Hatch, the fun is still growing. "If anyone had told me five years ago I'd be running today, I wouldn't have believed it," she laughs. "In fact, I still don't believe I'm doing this."

Gift of sight Hiraben Shah finds hope at end of 7,000-mile trip

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Staff Writer

Hiraben Shah can see. A fact of life, some might say, but for the 62-year-old homemaker from Cambay, India, it is a miracle. It is no miracle that she traveled more than 7,000 miles for cataract surgery. Nor is it a miracle that that operation was performed by Dr. Ronald Coburn, MD.

The miracle, pure and simple, is that she can see more than the difference between light and dark. She can see the faces of her grandchildren this Christmas season as they gather at the home of her son, Mahendra Shah of Westland. Her vision now, even corrected with glasses, may not be perfect, but she can see.

Hiraben Shah has, and had, cataracts in both eyes, attributable for the most part to glaucoma surgery she had in her homeland four to five years ago. The surgery was performed at a medical center in Gujarat state, where Cambay, a city of 60,000, is located.

Her son described the hospital and care she received as good, but called the results a misfortune. The surgery was performed at the top of the eye. The stitches did not hold and as a result the retina was damaged. Shah soon discovered his mother, as the result of the surgery and the cataracts that developed, was for all intent and purposes blind. He recommended she come to the United States and consult with his doctor, a specialist in cataract surgery.

Hiraben and her husband, Jayantilal, a retired mathematics instructor, took their son's advice, and on Nov. 22 arrived in the United States. Less than three weeks later she was at Lynn Hospital, awaiting the result of surgery on her right eye.

Her left eye, it was determined, was too badly damaged, with corneal melting and an inoperable detached retina.

Today, Hiraben can see. Corrected with glasses, her vision is 20/20. A miracle, considering that a month ago she had resigned herself to blindness.

She finds it hard to believe that Dr. Coburn performed surgery. There was no pain. In fact, the actual surgery itself lasted only 15 minutes in length, although she was in the operating room more than an hour. She knows whatever was done, worked, but she fears the loss of vision in her left eye may one day affect her functioning eye.

Coburn, a graduate of Wayne State University Medical School, performs close to 100 cataract operations a month, but it is Hiraben's that he speaks happily of. The odds were not in her favor. The surgery, which removes the clouded portion of the eye's lens, normally is performed where the scar tissue for Hiraben's previous surgery had been performed.

A specialist in phacoemulsification, Coburn made a tiny incision slightly below and to the side of the eye. A tiny probe was inserted and the cataract dissolved by ultrasonic methods. The dissolved material was then removed from the eye by aspiration through the probe.

It took just one stitch to close the opening, and today Coburn proclaims his client as healthy, and more importantly, once again sighted.

"We couldn't do what we do without the laser," Coburn said. "It helps the patients. It helps them to see faster and better."

Coburn uses the Yag laser at Lynn Hospital to make an open in the clear membrane of the eye that sometimes clouds after cataract surgery. He uses an argon laser in his office to adjust the tightness of sutures to avoid a distortion of the retina following cataract surgery.

In cataract surgery, Coburn normally implants an intraocular lens implant, a piece of plastic that is nontoxic and chemically inert. However, Hiraben will not have that surgery performed before she returns to Cambay in three to four months. Concurrent eye disease and the lack of ophthalmologic support in her homeland has ruled that out.

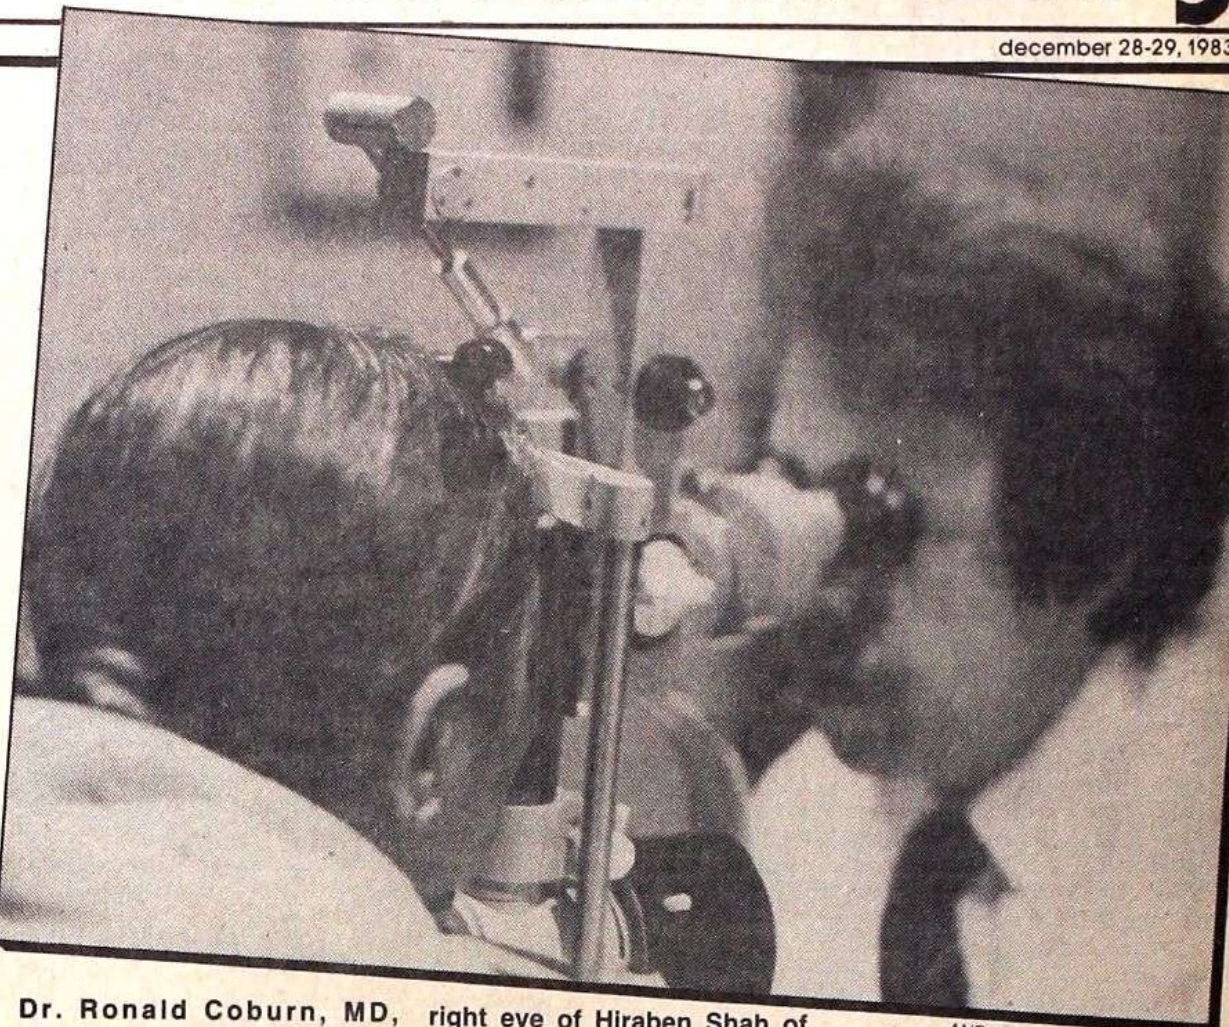

The use of the laser in such surgery is an offshoot of high technology, best done in large cities close to airports, according to Coburn. Cambay, while large, is more than 400 miles away from metropolitan Bombay, India.

Phacoemulsification of cataracts is the literally the "new kid on the street" in cataract surgery. Its practitioners must be well versed in micro-surgical techniques. They also must have access to laser like the Yag, which costs an estimated $110,000.

Coburn, who became entranced with ophthalmology during his residency, works with Dr. Lawrence Castleman at Lynn and are two of four or five surgeons in the region who specialize in cataract surgery.

Cataracts is a very prevalent eye disease and becoming more so as people live longer. In his estimation that some 500,000 cataract operations are performed yearly and as many implant operations are done.

The surgery as performed by Dr. Coburn puts no limits on the activity of patients as the result of the size of the incision. However, they are required to wear an eye shield at night for several weeks to avoid accidentally brushing the eye with a hand and damaging the eye.

Coburn has been doing cataract surgery for more than eight years, and to him it is his whole life. He and Castleman pioneered the surgery in this area, and his expertise has attracted patients from as far as India and England.

For Hiraben Shah, the gift of sight will be treasured. It is a treat to see her two grandchildren. She, her husband, and her son are happy at the results of the surgery. Mahendra credits it with good faith in her doctor and in her religion.

For Coburn it is a way of life. "For her it's a miracle; for me, it's something we do everyday."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By John Brimble

Graduate student at Yale has programmed a computer to devise new recipes utilizing foods on hand, always considering personal preferences, etc. In our day, MOTHER did that.

Slip a couple of strips of fresh red bell pepper into a sandwich. It's as tasty and moist as roast pepper, with a nice crunchy texture.

For best results with buttercream, spread a thin layer over cake and refrigerate to set the cake crumbs. Then smooth on finishing frosting.

Keep heat low if you're adding cheese to a sauce. High temperature will make it tough and stringy.

It's fun to make professional-looking chocolate curls with a potato peeler and room-temperature chocolate squares. Vary pressure to make curls of different thicknesses.

It's fun to eat out at Captain Nemo's.

HAVE YOU EVER RECEIVED A LETTER THAT MADE YOU FEEL LIKE SOMEONE SLAPPED YOUR FACE?

Dear Letter Writer:

I recently received a letter from an oil company telling me that they had received my application for a gasoline credit card, however, would have to decline extending me credit because of the credit record information they had received from the credit company. I didn't apply for a gasoline credit card as I already have one. This is not the first time I have received a rejection because of a bad credit report. What can I do?

Sincerely, Ms. E

Dear Ms. E:

There are two letters needed here, one to the oil company and one to the credit company as follows:

Sincerely, The Letter Writer
Dear Oil Company:

In response to your letter to me, I am, to say the least, puzzled and, via this letter, am making the credit company aware of the extreme harassment they have repeatedly caused me. I, in fact, did not apply for a gasoline credit card as I presently have one. At no time in my life have I ever paid a bill late or defaulted in any way with respect to a financial obligation. I demand an immediate explanation.

Sincerely, Ms. E

Dear Credit Company:

Enclosed please find a letter from the Oil Company to me, as well as a photocopy of my response to them. This is, at least, the fifth time that I have had such a reaction from a potential creditor when attempting to secure credit.

Please accept this letter as notification that you are releasing false and incriminating data with regard to my credit. I will no longer put up with this disturbing situation. I have no idea what the problem is, but strongly suggest that you solve it immediately. I expect to hear from you, by return mail, with respect to your resolution of this annoyance.

Sincerely, Ms. E

RESOLUTION: The Oil Company sent a letter of apology to Ms. E. The Credit Company sent Ms. E a copy of the information being released by them. Ms. E was then able to see that her bank had not notified the Credit Company of a loan that had been paid. She notified the bank. The bank notified the Credit Company who then removed the negative report. The matter was put to rest.

FRUSTRATED BY A COMPUTER'S CONTROL OVER YOUR LIFE?

Dear Letter Writer:

On December 15, 1981, I lost my driver's license privileges for one year because of a bad driving record. It is now January 5, 1983, and I still do not have my license back. Can you help me write a letter to the Licensing Bureau?

Thank you, S.J.

Dear Director, Driver Improvement Records:

On December 15, 1981, I lost my driver's license privileges for one year.
One year expired on December 15, 1982. I have attempted, on several occasions, to expedite the reinstatement of my license to no avail.

Today, January 5, 1983, I again phoned the Bureau and was told that you are "running behind" and that you would send me a letter by the end of January.

My revoked license should have been reinstated on December 15, 1982 and asking me to wait for paperwork to be completed that will extend the reinstatement to the end of February penalizes me in an unfair and unjust manner. It causes me unnecessary and unreasonable harassment.

I have been punished and my sentence has been served. Please respond, by return mail, with information regarding the immediate reinstatement of my driving privileges.

Sincerely, S.J.

RESOLUTION: On January 10, 1983, S.J. received a letter from the Bureau and on January 15, 1983, her license was reinstated and her driving record was cleared.

Attends conference

Maureen Jackson of New Boston (right) and Sharon Kingrey of Kettering, Ohio (left) meet with Mary Kay Ash, founder and chairman of Dallas-based Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., at a reception in the Ash home. The two women were among a group of beauty consultants in Dallas for a week of education, training and motivation to prepare for the position of independent sales director. The training featured executive conferences with key members of the company's management team, including individual and group meetings with Mary Kay. Upon achieving all required performance standards during the next three months, both women will be eligible for appointment to sales director on March 1, 1984.

A Christmas Carol

The turkey was paper mache...the costumes were made lovingly by moms and the actors were all very short people...but the love and the spirit of Christmas couldn't be stronger anywhere than at Hamilton School in Westland last week when junior thespians took to the gym stage to present their version of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Lines were forgotten, words were garbled to well-rehearsed songs and stage cues missed...and all-in-all the production was a smash success for all concerned. Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night...

RHINO TEEN MAGAZINE (Vol. 1 & 2)
(Rhino Records)

All praise the almighty Rhino, the greatest little-big record label the free world has ever known!

Earlier this year, they gave us The History of Flo & Eddie & the Turtles, a great three record set chronicling their great musical past. They've reissued all three Nazz (Todd Rundgren's first band) LPs, three volumes of surf music history, and countless others too numerous to mention, although they deserve it.

And now this: two albums chocked full of the best of Bubblegum, that catchiest of pop from the mid-to-late 60's.

Like many closet bubblegummers, I, too, used to deny my affection for tunes like "Yummy Yummy Yummy" and "Sugar Sugar". But now I can freely admit it — I love this stuff. Give me the 1910 Fruit-gum Company over Pat Benatar any day.

Of the 28 tunes on these two (individual) LPs, I can honestly say I remember listening to them on my portable radio as the battle raged over which was the best radio station in town? Was it CKLW or WKNR? Both were AM of course; we'd never even heard of FM.

Many of these songs, were one to try and find the original singles, would cost a fortune. "Green Tambourine" by the Lemon Pipers for around $10, and The Shadows of Night's ULTIMATE version of "Shake" goes for at least that. But money isn't the key here. These songs haven't been collected here just to save the connoisseur some money, they're here to give people the chance to enjoy good, danceable music that has been overlooked by so many.

Geez, even the Partridge Family sounds good on their number one hit "I think I Love You," and "Little Bit Of Soul" (recently covered by the Ramones) by the Music Explosion is one of the great tunes of all time.

The best selling point of these LPs are the songs themselves: "Snoopy vs. the Red Baron," "Indian Giver," "Simon Says," "1-2-3 Red Light," and, of course, my personal fave, "Little Willy" by the Sweet. You can't beat this stuff for sheer listenability!

Lesser-known gems of popdom are here too, like "Gimme Gimme Good Lovin'" by Crazy Elephant and "The Rapper," a much-heralded in its time rocker by the Jaggerz.

The only thing missing is a 1965 issue of Sixteen Magazine (with the printed lyrics to "Sugar Sugar"). Highly, highly recommended, and to Rhino we can only say thanks, but MORE! MORE! And next time, try and include "Little Black Egg" by the Music Machine. And "Sally Had a Party" by Flavor. And ...

our opinions

Tim Dyer--
He made it better

Phoenix Union's gain will be Wayne-Westland's loss. That statement may anger a few residents in the Wayne-Westland School District, but the fact of the matter is that the appointment of School Superintendent Dr. Timothy Dyer to a similar post with the Phoenix (Ariz.) Union High School District is a loss for Wayne-Westland.

Tim Dyer has done a great deal for the district since becoming its superintendent almost 10 years ago. He has steered the district through good and bad times and has weathered criticism from both employees and taxpayers, each demanding more of the district.

He has been knocked for his progressive, or better yet, creative thinking, slammed for having the "Cadillac" of contracts and lambasted for an administratively top heavy school district.

We are not saying that he is perfect. No one is. We're not saying that he is this school district's knight in shining armor. What we are saying is that after all is said and done, he has made this a better school district.

Think about it. Would a U.S. Secretary of Education pick a school district lacking in educational opportunities to make her first trip to Michigan? Shirley Hufstедler could have visited any number of "rich" school districts in the metropolitan area, but instead came to Wayne-Westland in September, 1980.

She came to see a SEV-poor school district, to see what can be done with a little imagination and, to borrow a phrase from real estate commercials, creative financing. The vocational-technical center, the combined social services-administrative offices, orthopedic pool and respite center show a concern for educating more than the average student. That did not fall on Wayne-Westland like pennies from heaven. It took planning, initiative and a dash of gutsiness to wrangle $8 million out of the federal government.

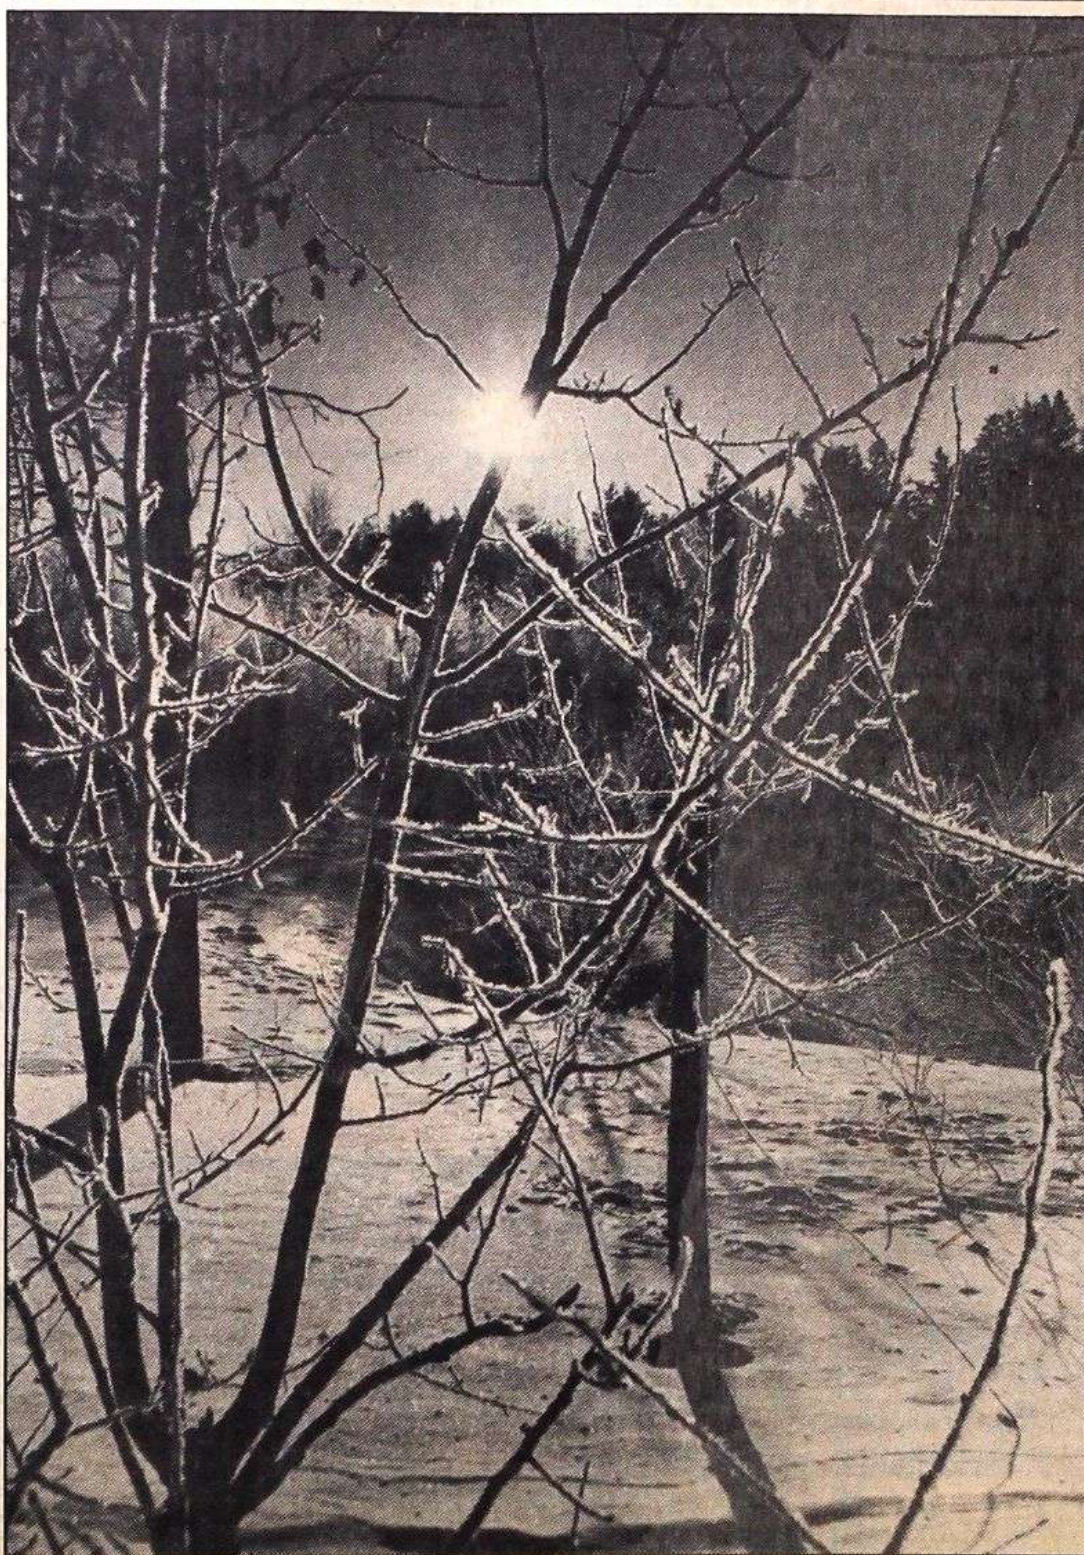

His concern for the education of students also has been shown in the concerted efforts to improve their performance on the state assessment tests. The tests are the barometer of how well a district is educating its students in the basics. Wayne-Westland's scores have continued to improve over the years, in part due to the efforts of Dyer's administrative staff and their commitment to education as a lifelong process.

Certainly, his most visionary, and most criticized, proposal was a community college. We believe that it would have been a good move for the district, and that someday, when the district must face the closing of one of its high schools, someone will remember a proposal about a community college and understand why it was called long-range planning.

Dyer has not had an easy time of it in the Wayne-Westland Schools. He has at times lost his cool, but he has never lost his concern for the welfare of its students.

He will be hard to replace. And while we wish him well in his new challenge, we must admit, we will miss him.

This has been a year of frustration and anticipation.

First, let's take a look at our schools. Singularly and collectively, they are all in trouble.

The jigsaw puzzle in Romulus was finally been put together by the Michigan Employment Relations Commission and the school district, which faces fiscal disaster but found temporary relief by unilaterally cutting teacher's salaries 22 percent a year ago. The schools are again in trouble.

MERC has decided that the schools must repay the teachers.

And that MERC decision caused a mixture of relief and concern: teachers are pleased with the ruling; the schools don't know where they're going to get the money to repay them.

So, as 1983 closes, Romulus finds itself again seeking funds, this time in a do-or-die situation. Voters can look forward to a millage request in 1984.

1983 also shifted the fortunes of the Wayne-Westland School District.

For the first time in over a decade the schools will be in the market for a new superintendent of schools. They will be losing Dr. Timothy Dyer who was awarded one of the country's most prestigious school posts, that of Superintendent of Schools in Phoenix, Arizona.

Dr. Dyer has provided the impetus and the initiative of building the Wayne-Westland schools into one of the best systems in the state.

Legislators get their job done

EDITOR — With all the negative stories emanating from Lansing these days, we sometimes lose sight of the positive activities that legislators are involved in. Last Friday, a public hearing was held in Jackson on educational issues.

Rep. Bill Keith of Garden City, Rep. Justine Barns of Westland, Rep. Glenn Oxender of Sturgis, Rep. Jim O'Neill of Saginaw, and Rep. Ed Geerlings of Muskegon were in attendance. Friday's weather was miserable and driving conditions were terrible — yet these legislators attended the hearing and stayed until the late afternoon.

These representatives gained no votes in their districts by attending, and would have lost none by not attending. You might say "but it's their job."

Of course it is, but that does not mean this action should not be known or appreciated. The circumstances of last Friday are facts that speak for themselves and are merely a part of the oft-repeated story of legislators acting in a manner that is routinely responsible, and thus, seldom newsworthy.

Perhaps we should take a step back to gain a broader view of the dedication of our legislators rather than judging on an emotional basis over one or two controversial issues.

About the feud in Canton Twp.

EDITOR — Concerning Canton Township's long running feud between strong personalities, and the latest shocker, the hiring of an independent party with expertise in government finance to determine the cause of the trouble, may I offer my opinions.

I have read with interest the continuing, startling events, and I have formed this opinion. Before you say that I know nothing about policy, administrative duties, let me state that you are right. This is precisely the point.

I am an unbiased and impartial observer, an older housewife with only the feeling that this constant criticism of each other seems to me to be undisciplined and unprofessional behavior.

I have heard no complaint that the treasurer's department is not doing its job, rather her response to stimuli are in question. It is obvious that somewhere along the line, emotions have taken over. Good manners have been lost in the shuffle, perhaps on both sides. It seems to me that a $6 book on etiquette and simple courtesy would be more sensible than spending $6,000 to tell you what common-sense should dictate.

No matter how much formal education anyone has, how many degrees, it is essential that he be able to get along with his fellow workers. Evidently, this problem is a personal one of conflicting views and a power struggle. Perhaps a professional counselor of human basics might suggest a way to better coping. Trustee Robert Padgett is correct. The hiring of a business expert is a complete waste of taxpayers' money and will never solve this serious disagreement over regulations.

Peace and good will to all of you.

McDonald's earns thanks

EDITOR — We at the Michigan Human Services, Inc. want to thank the good people at Belleville McDonald's, on Rawsonville Road, for their wonderful Christmas program of giving.

The staff at the Belleville McDonald's put together a program to buy Christmas presents for all of the residents in six of our group homes.

Individual staff members "adopted" one or more residents by purchasing gifts especially selected for each.

At the same time, the McDonald's staff organized a contest for senior citizens to make ornaments with the name of a resident as the center of the design. This week, we picked up the beautifully wrapped presents for 36 residents, each with a personalized ornament as a label.

We are truly appreciative of the civic spirit and individual generosity of the people who participated in this project. They have greatly contributed to the quality of life of the people we provide for.

Belleville McDonald's on Rawsonville Road has a very special staff, and we want to share our admiration of them with the rest of the town.

JASON

Jason is a sweet young boy
Light of skin and filled with joy
His chestnut hair and deep blue eyes
Reveals a beauty twice his size
He's only five years old they say
And grows more handsome everyday
He cries a tear every now and then
But soon is happy once again
He doesn't play with toys and such
But laughs to feel new things to touch
We hardly know that he's around
For seldom does he make a sound
His wind up music box is heard
Otherwise there's not a word
If put upon the couch or floor
He's just as happy as before
We carry him where he must go
Though he will never let you know
He's quite content most anywhere
If someone's near he knows will care
Jason's quite like you and me
Except his eyes will never see
He isn't able much to talk
Nor hasn't yet learned how to walk
He can't sit up quite straight for long
But ne'er complains of something wrong
They say that Jason's mind's not well
To know of things to show and tell
Who can say what thoughts he holds
In lessons that his life unfolds
Most have every faculty that's meant for you and me
Though Jason with his music box is as happy as can be.

1983 was filled with blessings

In three days 1983 will pass into history and the New Year 1984 will be upon us! Remember many years ago when Orwell's 1984 was published? I remember sitting curled up in the big old leather chair reading it and thinking how 1984 was so far in the future that all of those things predicted just might happen. But I wasn't too shaken.

After all there were a lot of tomorrows before 1984.

And now...now, there are only three tomorrows and we are there!

Like so many dire prophecies predicted for the future, this New Year of 1984 will be pretty much like the 1,984 New Years since the birth of Christ...somewhat good and somewhat bad.

Glowing in spots and tarnished in others, but still the earth whirls in its orbit, and the sun and the moon shine down upon us, and the springs and the summers come and then the gloriousness of fall and the excitement of winter. Love and sorrow intermingle...and life goes on.

This is the time to look back over 1983 and count the blessings that have been bestowed. For me, 1983 has been special. Two precious new grandchildren have bounced into my life, Gregory Lars and Kelly Therese. They have come to join the others who have their own special niche in their grandmother's heart...Darcy Lynn, Michael John, Anthony Christian, Jason Fredric, James Michael and Robert John.

And then there is the BOOK! 1984 will bring its publication, but 1983 brought its acceptance, bringing with that acceptance the assurance that one never grows too old to have one's dream come true!

1983 also brought life to my beloved sister with the promise that 1984 will be even better for her.

And 1983 has been a year of good health and some prosperity for my children, with promotions and achievements bringing gladness and pride to their mother's heart.

1983 saw my youngest making like a star in her college plays and her mother saw every single performance, and 1984 promises an exciting future for this very youngest, who still likes a messed up room. It makes her feel cozy!!!

And most of all 1983 has been filled with the love of that special person, who came into my life in December of 1943...forty years ago...and who has made my life what it is today...with the joys and the goodness emanating from someone special. 1984 promises to be even better!

My heart fills with sadness as we approach the last few days of 1983, for those whose paths have led them through sorrow and misery, with the glow of happiness ever eluding them. Please God, let 1984 touch them with that special glow and wipe away the sorrow and the misery.

Happy New Year!

Mona Grigg

pants he owned, split them up the middle and tossed them out in the driveway as a sort of welcoming committee when he finally cruised in.

Later, when they told about it, they both howled with laughter, even though they were in the midst of bankruptcy proceedings at the time and were hardly in a position to buy replacements. He wore the same pair of pants, the ones he came home in, for a whole year — and since Rita was convinced he did it out of spite, she pretended she didn't notice.

I wonder what they're doing today? Are they still clever and creative and zany, or have they turned into middle-aged ordinaries? Never mind, I don't want to know.

If those people out there in the desert were not my mentors, they were, at the least, my inspiration. They taught me that life is a serious matter, but living it doesn't have to be.

Life among the Kennedys almost prepared me for life after the Kennedys.

But not quite.

mona grigg

Rita---educating Mona

Rita Kennedy, my neighbor when I lived out in the desert, had by far the messiest house anyone had ever seen. Sometimes you had to reach around the door and move things before you could open it wide enough to get yourself in.

I was 19-years-old, a veritable newlywed, about to become a mother, when my husband's work took us from our safe, if predictable, midwestern existence out beyond the Los Angeles smog to the foothills of the Mojave Desert.

I decided to hate it from the first day on, when our neighbors, the Kennedys warned us to shake out our boots and jeans before putting them on in case black widow spiders or scorpions might be lurking inside them. (I wore boots because someone told me rattlesnakes couldn't bite through them).

Those same neighbors laughed at my distress and gave me two months to become a "Desert Rat." I said, "Never!"

I was 2,000 miles away from my family, taking up residence with a man I decided I barely knew, about to have a baby I would know even less. Coyotes howled from the hills each night before they skulked down to raid the chicken ranch behind our house.

Who in their right mind would even remotely like living like this?

Well, I've never claimed to be in my right mind, and actually it took longer than two months, but they were right. I did become a "Desert Rat." I became something else, too — thanks to the first non-conformist I had ever met.

If I decided, at first glance, to hate the desert, I decided with equal fervor to love Rita Kennedy. The day I met her, kittens were being born under her kitchen table. As the last one ejected itself, a crowd of us cheered it on with champagne toasts. (Pretty heady stuff for a 19-year-old who had never seen anything being born before — let alone drunk champagne in the middle of the afternoon.) I, being the youngest, was served mine in an exquisite cut crystal champagne glass. And since it was the only one, the rest were served theirs in jelly glasses and mason jars. I noticed that no one seemed to notice.

I've been trying to conjure Rita's face in my mind, and I just can't. All I can remember is that when I first saw her I thought what an incredibly homely woman she was. Plain face, no makeup, her mousy brown hair pulled back in a ponytail, wearing her constant uniform: jeans and desert boots and a plaid shirt two sizes too big, shirt-tails blowing in the breeze.

And I remember that, after I knew her better, I wondered how I could have ever mistaken her for homely — she was beautiful.

People — elegant, chic people, as well as the rest of us — were drawn to her. She "understood" everyone, and her common-sense eloquence made us laugh and cry — and think.

Rita was also the first person I ever met who was a "writer." She wrote a script for Disney about the adventures of a mischievous otter, and I don't remember whether it was good or bad — I only remember that she had the guts to send it out. I also don't know if it was ever published. But it doesn't matter. A seed was planted in my brain: writers can be normal people — next door neighbors, even. Although applying the word "normal" to Rita might be stretching it a bit. She sometimes did the most outrageous things.

Once, when her husband, Jack, stayed out until the wee hours, Rita, in a fit of Freudian frenzy, took every pair of

Wayne wins WW holiday cage title

Zebras come through for new coach

Wayne Memorial High School's basketball team has three goals for each game they play this season: play hard, play smart, and play together.

The Zebras, under the direction of Head Coach Chuck and Assistant Coach Tim Collen, achieved all three goals last Thursday night as they defeated the Howell Highlanders, 72-45, in the annual Western Wayne Christmas Classic Tournament. The victory, achieved on Inkster Cherry Hill's floor, brought the tournament championship to Wayne for the first time since 1981.

Henry was "extremely pleased" win the the win, giving full credit to the play of his players. "They are a beautiful group of kids, who really respond well to each other and have a good relationship with each other and me."

The Zebras got to the championship round by defeating a scrappy Westland John Glenn squad, 49-40, the previous night. They took control of that game the same way they grabbed control of the Howell game—using a full-court pressure defense.

"In the last four minutes of the first half, we switched from our half-court press to our full-court press and it worked," said Henry.

Leading the scoring for Wayne in their contest with Glenn was Howard Flowers with 11 points. Flowers came back on Thursday night and added 12 more to help his teammates to the victory, their fifth in six starts this season.

Flowers was one of five Wayne players in double figures against Howell. Keith Strickland led the Zebras with 14 points, followed by his brother Tony with 12. Mike Quartuccio and Pollis Robertson each added 10.

Howell came out of the starting gate in the first quarter like a house afire. The Highlanders were intent on defending their Christmas Classic Trophy they had won the year before. Howell had beaten Inkster Cherry Hill to reach the finals and were determined not to let the opportunity for another title slip by them. Their bookend forwards, Phil Weiss and Mark Redinger, certainly didn't let them down in the first quarter as they scored 14 points between them and led their teammates to a 16-12 first quarter lead.

Wayne stayed close in the first quarter with help from Flowers (4) and Stricklands (4).

In the second quarter, Howell continued its mastery over Wayne and built their lead to as many as eight points before Wayne called a timeout.

Glenn suddenly hits skid

It's back to the drawing board for the Rockets of Westland John Glenn following last week's Western Wayne Christmas Classic Tournament at Cherry Hill High School. The Rockets finished fourth in the tournament, losing to Wayne High, 49-40 and Cherry Hill, 65-59, which dropped their record to 4-3.

Glenn had trouble on the boards in both games and that problem prevented them from winning last week. Coach Gordie Davis and Assistant Coach Daran Armstrong know what they have to do over the Christmas break and hope to have the kinks worked out by the time they take on league rival Garden

City on Jan. 13.

Against Wayne, the Rockets came out shooting with six of the seven players scoring at least one point.

However, Wayne was a little sharper and outscored Glenn, 19-10, to put the Rockets on the run. Pollis Robertson, the Zebras' 6-6 center, ignited the Zebras on both ends of the floor. Robertson scored six points and Howard Flowers scored five off the board.

Glenn closed the gap a little in the second quarter to 27-18 as center Mario Grazulis scored five pints to help his teammates.

Wayne increased the lead after halftime to 35-26 as Mike Quartuccio scored four points.

But the fourth quarter featured a typical Rocket rally, led by seniors Jeff Hawley and Craig Thornton. Hawley scored four points and Thornton added six to narrow the gap to 42-38 with 3:17 left. Thornton's two free throws at that point had Glenn fans anxious and Wayne fans nervous.

But Quartuccio's four points and Strickland's three-point play with 1:37 left sealed Glenn's fate.

In the consolation game, Glenn took on a Cherry Hill squad and got off to a 15-10 first quarter lead thanks to six points from Hawley and five from Grazulis.

Cherry Hill came back in the second quarter to cut the Glenn lead to 29-27 as Mark Merriman, the Spartans leading scorer, scored six points. Hawley continued to have the hot hand for the Rockets as he added six more points and kept the Rockets in the lead at halftime.

Cherry Hill came out fired up at halftime and took the game right to the Rockets. Merriman scored eight points and fed the ball on the fast break to Dion Gipson (6) and his brother Mike, who added four.

Meanwhile, Mike Baydarian got hot from the outside and hit four baskets to help keep his team close at the end of the quarter at 47-43.

But the Spartans were determined not to finish fourth in the tournament and they spurted early in the final stanza to a 55-45 lead and seemingly had the game in hand. But the Rockets responded to that challenge by scoring six straight points, with Baydarian hitting four points and Thornton hitting for two.

But Merriman's eight fourth quarter points, which brought his game-high total to 24, and Gipson's four silenced the Rockets and the Spartans went home with a third-place finish in their own tournament and left the Rockets at the drawing board.

Howell may have wished the Zebras had never had that timeout, because what happened after that turned the tide of that game in the Zebras direction and the Highlanders never saw daylight again.

Henry then switched to his full-court press and the Zebras were off to the races.

The Zebras scored eight straight points with one minute left to take a 28-24 lead into the lockerroom at halftime. Quartuccio, described by Henry as "a very heady player," hit a pair of buckets from the right side of the key and Keith Strickland and Kevin Daily scored a bucket apiece.

Wayne came out in the second half with the same defense and the same intensity with which they had closed the first half. Howell could do nothing to crack it. They couldn't get the ball inside to Weiss and Redinger to score and their outside shooting wasn't there. Pollis Robertson and the Strickland Brothers

Tourney champ

Westland's Bantam A hockey team won five games and tied another to claim victory in the annual Thanksgiving Tournament, which was held at the Westland Arena. A dozen teams from around the southeastern corner of Michigan participated in the tourney, and the Westlanders had to best Redford in the final game to claim the trophy. Members of the team include Scott Koscho, Chad Mena, Nick Renzi, Pat Mowinski, Mickey Miller, Jimmy Jones, Richard Kendall, Mike Macauley, Kevin Nowak, Mark McCormick, Stephen Wallace, Timmy Brown, Pat Kelm, David Hendriksen, and Eddie Otlewski. They are coached by Ernie Kelm, Danny Kubany and Ray Ericksen. Barry Wallace is the team manager.

Sports Briefs

Howell edges Glenn

While Wayne Memorial cagers were busy claiming the varsity basketball crown, Howell's Highlanders came away with a narrow one-basket victory over Westland John Glenn to capture the Junior Varsity Holiday Championship.

The Highlanders edged the Westlanders 45-43 to earn the championship.

Scott Winfrey, who pumped in 22 points for the Rockets, led all scorers.

Here's all-tourney

Wayne Memorial placed two of its players on the Western Wayne Christmas Classic All-Tournament team.

The coaches named Kevin Daily and Pollis Robertson — both from the Zebras — along with Westland John Glenn's Jeff Hawley, Cherry Hill's Mark Merriman and Howell's Mark Redinger to the coveted lineup.

Belleville Belle doing well at EMU

Ex-Belleville High swim star Laura Kuhr is doing quite well as a member of Eastern Michigan University's diving and swimming teams.

The 1982 graduate of Belleville, who set numerous prep records, is currently on a swim scholarship and is majoring in language and international trade.

"Gaining a better education is what mainly influenced me to attend college," Laura said, "and I went into language and international trade because I love learning French and I would like to travel and meet a lot of different people."

Laura is the daughter of George and Pat Gors of 7659 Marlowe in Belleville.

Bedford wins Glenn tourney

Temperance Bedford, the defending Class A state wrestling champ, was clearly in a class of its own at the Westland John Glenn Invitational. Bedford mustered 249½ points to emerge atop of a field of 16 teams, while host, Glenn, finished second with 128½ points.

"Bedford was clearly the outstanding team in the field," said Glenn coach Tom Bucklew. "They also have to be considered as the favorite to retain the state title in March."

Johnson's digests first hockey setback

Futurama ends division leader's win streak at 11

It took 13 weeks, but Johnson's Bakery finally consumed its first defeat.

And it was Futurama which handed the Bonkowski Division leader in the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey its initial setback.

Futurama scored with 48 seconds remaining in the game to down a 4-3 victory. Jay Middaugh was the hero for Futurama, scoring the game winner. Gene Tauriainen, Dave Lielinski and Mike Trudel tallied for a goal each. Zielinski also picked up one assist. Ron Tyranski received two assists while Claud Johnston finished with one assist.

Johnson's Bakery got its three goals from Otto Mason, Dale Fawkes and Ken Howe.

Norm Beasley and Little Bill's Trophies skated to a 5-1 victory against Johnson's Carbonic as Beasley tallied three times and picked up one assist. Larry Kaifesh scored once and received two assists while Bob Wood accounted for one goal. George Murphy and Terry Boote received one assist.

Curtis Oger scored Johnson's Carbonic lone goal with Ron Johnson and Nelson Vanderburgh assisting.

All Sorts Sports gave up an early lead and had to settle for a 3-3 tie with Jake's Lounge. Bob Jones Scored once for All Sorts along with one assist. Craig Averill and Ed Spontack added to the scoring with single tallies. Dave Fishwick picked up one assist in the contest.

Paul Kos, Paul Briski and Dave Zajac tallied for Jake's with two goals being scored in the final period. Rich Riedel, Mike McGraw, Ken Knick and Don Middaugh received one assist.

Brock Builders logged a 5-4 win over Tastee Freez as Rick Wolkowicz scored the winning goal with just 10 seconds left on the clock.

Wolkowicz also had an earlier assist. Dan Demers, Dennis LaPensee also tallied for one goal and an assist with Ron Jacobs and John Davis rounding out the scoring with a goal each. John Clearwood received two assists while Tom DiLaura, John Colligan, Arnie McLellan and Layne Cardinal finished with one assist.

Terry Johnson scored twice for Tastee Freez and picked up one assist. Conrad Madaleno tallied for one goal and an assist while Mike Villemure carded one goal. Arnie Cox logged two assists as Glenn Stevenson, Roger Lemkie, Marv Borycki and Jim McMaster picked up one assist.

In the highest scoring game of the night, Mic Dago Pub carded a 9-4 win against Family Heating. Ken Murray had the hot stick for Mic-Dago as he scored five goals and picked up one assist. Joel Layne tallied for one goal and four assists, Gary Pierce scored once and picked up three assists. Roger Wodgenske rattled the net for one goal and two assists.

Art Cazabon accounted for the remaining goal.

Ray Schemanske received two assists while Tom Bryans, Dave Jones and Dennis Darnell picked up one assist.

Nick Palise scored twice for Family Heating; Ron Wojewski tallied for one goal and two assists while John Ruggiero scored the remaining goal.

Terry Lindsey, Dan Kubany, Ray Ericksen and Don Strauss picked up one assist.

The next scheduled games are on Sunday, Jan. 8. Family Heating skates against Tastee Freez at 4 p.m.; Brock Builders take on Jake's Lounge at 5:15 p.m.; All Sorts Sports will host Futurama at 6:30 p.m.; Mic-Dago Pub and Johnson's Carbonic will play at 7:45 p.m.; Johnson's Bakery and Little Bill's Trophies play the nightcap at 9 p.m.

Wayne wins basketball title with new coach

played excellent defense and their rebounding opened up Wayne's fast break.

Robetson, whom Henry calls "the team's main man," was able to rebound and play both ends of the floor virtually unimpeded. Tony Strickland scored eight points in the quarter but it was Roberson, who dominated the quarter at both ends of the floor. He scored 10 points including a thunderous slam dunk that nearly brought down the house.

Howell could only muster six points in the quarter to Wayne's 22 and trailed after three, 50-30.

Both coaches emptied their benches in the fourth quarter and each got good production from it. Wayne's Him Todoroff scored eight points, four from the free-throw line, and two from Steve Swope. Howell made it respectable with seven points from Brent Earl and six from Tim Olszewski.

But the real story of this game occurred in the second and third quarters when Wayne went to their full-court defense and Howell was unable to handle it.

If the Zebras continue to achieve their goals of playing hard, playing smart, and playing together through the remainder of this season, they can look forward to many more nights like the one they had last Thursday.

Don't let your New Year begin in tragedy. During the holidays, when drunk driving related accidents and deaths are more likely to occur, you can do something about it. If you drink, don't drive. See that others who are drinking have a ride home, and those who are driving are fit to get behind the wheel. Report any intoxicated drivers you see on the road. We want you to have a happy New Year...and a safe one!

ly relevant for automatic transmissions, naturally — but it's not harmful to manuals, either.

4. All fluid levels should be brought to maximums. Windshield squirter, battery, radiator, all should be checked.
Again, I believe it's worth itemizing these and have someone do it — just so you can indicate the overall condition of the car in case of an accident, theft, etc.
Dealers and licensed service stations are familiar with these requests and are responsive to them.

5. Do not leave your rear defroster on for a minute more than it's needed...it's the biggest battery drain you've got.

And please...let's be careful out there. How about a huge dose of common sense before starting out? You know...start the car, then get out and clear all the windows, walking around the car to make sure all the lights are visible. Enter the car, lock the doors, buckle your seat belt and operate your defroster until you feel heat your face, then switch to heat.
Hot air rises so it will keep side windows clean. If you experience heavy fogging on the inside windows, you probably have melted snow pooling on your vinyl mats creating too much humidity in the car. Stop and remove it. Stay to the right of the road until you are sure that the car is warm.

A special note to four-wheel drivers — all you have is traction. Getting right up on someone's bumper isn't doing anything. You can't maneuver or stop as well as anyone else, and if you've jacked up your suspension, you're actually dangerous in the snow! Now before I get cards and letters, let's get this straight. What you just read are the facts, the true facts and nothing but the facts — and you guys know who you are!

Well, that's the snow lecture for this year...you might consider keeping this in your car and when you run across an obvious non-reader, you can spot them by their snow covered rear windows, stick this on their windshield...slowly but surely, we'll get through to them!

Coming up Jan. 6, 7 and 8 at Cobo — Auto Rama. More than 500 rods, trucks, buggies and motorcycles for your perusal.

mat stores — you can save 25 percent. See you there!

Gall and David Dershinski of Canton Township hold their sons Derek and David as they pose

VOLUME DEALER
IN AMERICA

AMC/JEEP/RENAULT
OFFERS A 1983 MODEL MULTI-MILLION-DOLLAR
NEW CAR CLEARANCE SALE

OUT THEY GO! Regardless of Price!!! And Believe Me, They Must!

Thanks America. We at Taylor AMC/Jeep/Renault are so very grateful for your support. What is so beautiful about this, the greatest land on earth, is that we are currently selling over 400 new and used cars a month consistently. You the people of Michigan and America, have made us number 1 in the United States with American Motors. Let it be known there is only one Number 1 in America for our product line; that's Taylor AMC/Jeep/Renault. One dealer says he's the Number 1 Renault dealer in America, and he's definitely not. Others are so crazy they say they're the world's largest, and they certainly are not. We have been called all kinds of names by other very jealous dealers when most of them are only 40% of our production and have to turn right around and copy us in everything we do. We say, "don't copy us, as you can never catch up in sales volume now or ever in the future". Thanks a million all you loyal customers for supporting us in such astronomical numbers. We are your All-American dealer. We're here to serve you today, tomorrow and for years to come. The people love us for our knockout deals because they're buying and they keep coming back, allowing us to maintain our ever-precious and valued name as being the Number 1 give-away artists in America today.
